In 1984, Rod Pacheco began his career as a Deputy District Attorney for Riverside County. He quickly advanced to the level of Senior Deputy District Attorney, specializing in homicide and death penalty cases. During his last 10 years at the District Attorney's Office, Pacheco won every case he prosecuted, including five death penalty cases.

His effectiveness and dedication to public safety was acknowledged in 1984 when he was named "Prosecutor of the Year" in the Juvenile Crime Division. In 1987 Pacheco received the "Outstanding Achievement Award" and in 1994 he received the "Special Achievement Award" for his work in the District Attorney's Criminal Division.

In 2002, Michael Ramos was elected District Attorney for San Bernardino County. Previously, he served as a Deputy District Attorney in San Bernardino for 13 years, four of which were in the Major Crimes Unit. On January 23, 2004, Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger appointed Mr. Ramos to the Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board.

Mr. Ramos is the recipient of the Inland Empire Hispanic Image Awards for Influential Latino of the Year for 2005. Currently, Mr. Ramos serves as the State-wide Co-Chair of the Gang Violence Committee for
